

Peer Reviewed

Title:

Contributors

Journal Issue:

Places, 14\(1\)

Publication Date:

2001

Publication Info:

Places

Permalink:

<http://escholarship.org/uc/item/2j575199>

Acknowledgements:

This article was originally produced in Places Journal. To subscribe, visit www.places-journal.org. For reprint information, contact places@berkeley.edu.

Keywords:

places, placemaking, architecture, environment, landscape, urban design, public realm, planning, design, contributors

Copyright Information:

All rights reserved unless otherwise indicated. Contact the author or original publisher for any necessary permissions. eScholarship is not the copyright owner for deposited works. Learn more at http://www.escholarship.org/help\_copyright.html#reuse

eScholarship
University of California

eScholarship provides open access, scholarly publishing services to the University of California and delivers a dynamic research platform to scholars worldwide.

Karen A. Franck is a professor in the School of Architecture and the Department of Humanities and Social Science at the New Jersey Institute of Technology, and is director of the architecture school's Urban Lab. She holds a doctorate in environmental psychology from the City University of New York.

Randolph T. Hester, Jr., a consulting editor to Places, is a professor of landscape architecture at the University of California, Berkeley.

Kathleen James-Chakraborty is the author of German Architecture for a Mass Audience, In the Spirit of Our Age: Eric Mendelsohn's B'nai Amoona Synagogue and Erich Mendelsohn and the Architecture of German Modernism. She is an associate professor of architecture at the University of California, Berkeley.

Fred I. Kent is the president of New York-based Project for Public Spaces, which he founded in 1975. He has guided numerous research and planning projects, designing and conducting user studies settings from parks and plazas to public markets and cultural facilities. He studied urban geography, economics, transportation and planning at Columbia University.

Stephan Klein is professor of Interior Design at Pratt Institute, where he was recently named Institute Professor and distinguished teacher of the year. He holds a doctorate in Environmental Psychology from the City University of New York and studied architecture at Cornell University.

Kevin J. Krizek is a Ph.D. candidate in Urban Design and Planning at the University of Washington. His work focuses on land use and transportation planning, particularly the influence of urban form on travel behavior. He has worked as a planner in Teton County, Wyoming, and currently serves on the Seattle Bicycle Advisory Board.

Barbara Stabin Nesmith is a doctoral student in city and regional planning at the University of Pennsylvania. Her research interests focus on the intersection of urban design and land use planning, participatory processes and the use of information technology in planning. She holds a Master in City Planning from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

John Ruble, FAIA, is principal at Moore Ruble Yudell in Santa Monica. His best-known work includes housing in Berlin and Sweeden, and civic projects such as the competition-winning entry for the U.S. Embassy in Berlin and the University of Washington campus in downtown Tacoma. He studied architecture at the University of Virginia and University of California, Los Angeles, and has taught at UCLA and Cornell University.

Ilaria Salvadori works with the Tenderloin Neighborhood Development Corporation in San Francisco. She is studying planning and landscape architecture at the University of California, Berkeley, where her interests include community participation and the social aspects of the design of everyday public spaces.

Andrew G. Schwartz is publications director at New York-based Project for Public Spaces. He has been responsible for researching, writing and editing various publications, including Public Parks, Private Partners: How Partnerships are Revitalizing Urban Parks, the handbook How to Turn a Place Around and two volumes of How Transportation and Community Partnerships Are Shaping America.

Jean-Paul Thibaud, a sociologist and urban planner, is a researcher at France's Centre National de la Recherche Scientifique and at the Research Center on Sonic Space and the Urban Environment at the School of Architecture of Grenoble. His research focuses on perception in public places, the sociology of the senses and theory of urban ambiances.

CENTER BOOKS ON SPACE, PLACE, AND TIME

George F. Thompson, Series Founder and Director

THE SPACES BETWEEN BUILDINGS

Larry R. Ford

Read Chapter One at www.jhupbooks.com

"Easily accessible and useful to anyone interested in the pattern of our cities."—Dick Farley, Bloomsbury Review

"Through description and photography, Ford offers a guide to the qualities of design, architecture, and ornamentation that create the character of urban spaces. The book is both interesting and illuminating—people will see cities differently after reading it."—Edward K. Muller, University of Pittsburgh

234 pp., 52 illus., $25.95 paper

A LAND BETWEEN

Owens Valley, California

Rebecca Fish Ewan

"A Land Between is a boundlessly original study, written by someone clearly invested in the local landscape yet capable of making sense of its larger patterns. Rebecca Ewan captures the qualities of the Owens Valley that make its legacy so enduring and rich."—Paul F. Starrs, University of Nevada, Reno, author of Let the Cowboy Ride

176 pp., 47 illus., $22.50 paper

THE REDROCK CHRONICLES

Saving Wild Utah

T. H. Watkins

"The book is simply essential right now in Utah, a state where the debate over the vast but unprotected canyon country is loud and often uninformed. Watkins is the person for the job. The thesis is direct, wise, and profoundly field-based. Yes, we must protect this resource because we love it, because it is achingly beautiful, and because its destruction is ethically unacceptable."—John B. Wright, author of Rocky Mountain Divide: Selling and Saving the West and Montana Ghost Dance: Essays on Land and Life

176 pp., 42 illus., $24.95 paper